STAY OVERNIGHT

During the transformation of the old Offenburg correctional facility into a design hotel, the historical and sensitive heritage of the prison building was to be mixed with the right amount of light-heartedness. Being imprisoned, deprivation and lost time were translated into retreat, concentration and awareness for the moment – needs of today's society. The hotel consists of two separate buildings and a newly added central glass cube, which houses the public area with restaurant, bar and lobby. On an interme-

The reconstruction of a prison building requires a thought-out plan. For this reason it was very important to react with sensitivity to what the historical building was gradually revealing.

diate level, a semi-public living room for the hotel guests has been built, based on the former prisoners' common room. On the second floor there is a conference room. The new glass building is not only a visual link between the two hotel wings, but also symbolizes the former prison courtyard. For the 38 rooms and suites, two to three former cells were combined, depending on their size. The prison atmosphere has given way to an absolute feel-good atmosphere.
